Regardless of being a director, executive, manager or salesperson - everyone has a subjective concept of the world, i.e. mental map. Methods of neuro-linguistic programming (NLP) help to improve interpersonal communication.

Advance your standing in discussions with employees and customers and learn about the impact of inner greatness and charisma.

Experience how you can actively make a change. Learn which beliefs and resources may support you in your personal change process.

How do you manage to emotionally connect in discussions, in daily business? Make your own experience how you can connect to others easily in a playful way.

Cultural mindfulness plays an increasingly important role. To live diversity or be a part of a diverse corporate culture starts with common ground as to values and basic assumptions. Provide for clear information and orientation to approach mental maps that remained undisclosed through the spoken word.
